The Titanic was the largest and most luxurious passenger ship in the world at the time of its sinking. It was built by the White Star Line, and was on its maiden voyage from Southampton, England to New York City. The ship was carrying over 2,200 passengers and crew, from all walks of life.

On the night of April 14, 1912, the Titanic struck an iceberg at 11:40 pm. The iceberg tore a large hole in the ship's hull, and the Titanic began to sink rapidly. The crew and passengers were ordered to abandon ship, but there were not enough lifeboats for everyone. Over 1,500 people died in the sinking, including many women and children.

The sinking of the Titanic was a major shock to the world. It led to a number of changes in maritime safety regulations, including the requirement for ships to carry enough lifeboats for everyone on board.

The Titanic has also had a profound impact on our understanding of the human condition. The disaster has shown us the importance of courage, resilience, and compassion in the face of adversity. It has also reminded us of the fragility of life, and the importance of cherishing every moment we have.

The Legacy of the Titanic
